Edgefield Lumber Company Brings BluWood to Gulf South

Loxley, Ala. – Edgefield Lumber Company recently announced it will be the region’s exclusive manufacturer of BluWood, a line of lumber products resistant to mold, moisture, fungi and termites.

Founded in 2007 and headquartered in Loxley, Ala., the company is owned and operated by Mason McGowin and Greg Wells.

“Protecting your home from mold and Formosan termites is a primary concern,” explained McGowin. “Mold and wood rot not only cause structural damage, and reduce home values, but also can cause related allergy and asthma problems.”

BluWood features the Perfect Barrier Infusion System®, a factory-applied, two-part coating that defends all of the wood products in a home from mold, moisture, fungi and wood ingesting insects.

“BluWood offers protection and applications not available from pressure treated or untreated lumber,” said McGowin. “We can apply this to every piece of lumber for your house – spruce, Southern Yellow Pine, red oak – you name it. We can treat about 50 million board feet of lumber per year, and with an exclusive territory that’s among the fastest growing in the nation, we’re constantly adding capacity to serve our customers.”

In addition, all BluWood products are safe on the job site and for homeowners, with virtually no harmful chemicals for families or the environment. And all BluWood products are backed by a Limited Lifetime Warranty.
